Études olympiques / Olympic studies

Historical and contemporary issues in Olympic studies: proceedings of the Conference held by the University of Johannesburg and the Olympic Studies Centre of the German Sport University Cologne in Johannesburg, 30 November - 2 December 2015
Cora Burnett... [et al.]. University of Johannesburg, 2015, 220 p.
This book is a collection of papers presented at the academic conference "Historical and contemporary issues in Olympic studies", held at the University of Johannesburg (South Africa), 30 November - 2 December 2015. The book is divided into four parts, which are indicative of the themes of the conference: "Olympic education, values and culture", "Governance of Olympic sport: actors, developments and trends", "Contemporary challenges of the Olympic Movement" and "The Olympic Movement in Africa". The contributors are academics and experts in the field of Olympic studies and the variety of their approaches contribute to the ever more frequent discussions on the state of the Olympic Movement.

Gouvernance / Governance

Olympic social responsibility: a challenge for the future
Social responsibility, especially in the fields of education, society and peace, is one of the cornerstones of the Olympic ideal and strategic vision (contribute to building a better world through sport). The article reviews the literature on organizational social responsibility (OSR) and the relationship between sport/Olympism and OSR in order to examine the conditions governing the implementation and success of the IOC's strategic vision.
Coubertin's humanism facing post-humanism: implications for the future of the Olympic Games

The idea of human perfection and progress, expressed by the Olympic motto swifter, higher, stronger, one of the core concepts of Coubertin's humanism, will probably foster all kinds of performance enhancement and sooner or later engender post-human athletes. The ideal of harmonious education that had a moderating effect on the ambition of permanent progress was more or less abandoned when the IOC had definitely to choose between what Coubertin called the market and the temple. Sooner or later, the IOC will face the problem of athletes who could be characterized as cyborgs or post-humans in the sport arenas. To prepare this future, the IOC needs visions for the mid and long term to lead the Olympic Movement in a proactive manner.

Will the Games pay?: an event analysis of the 2020 Summer Olympics announcement on stock markets in Japan, Spain, and Turkey

As a wealthy, highly developed city with many existing athletic facilities, Tokyo seems uniquely placed to profit from hosting the 2020 Olympics and boost the Japanese economy. We test this hypothesis using event analysis to determine whether the holding period return on Tokyo’s Nikkei 225 stock index showed abnormal returns following the IOC’s announcement that Tokyo would host the 2020 Summer Games. We use the same technique to investigate whether the stock markets in Madrid or Istanbul - the other finalist cities - showed abnormally low holding period returns in the wake of the announcement.

Decolonial practices of the No Sochi Circassian movement: confronting colonial double backing through the Sochi Winter Olympics

When humanist global aspirations through mega events like the Olympics meet with nation building, the affects and effects for Indigenous peoples are paradoxically painful. This paper brings forth the life history and experience of the Circassian people, the Indigenous peoples of Sochi, who through the No Sochi activist movement mounted a valiant campaign against the 2014 Sochi Olympics in Russia.

The role of expectations, confirmation, and perceived performance in Olympic Games attitudes: a cross-national longitudinal study
Anahit Armenakyan... [et al.]. IN: Looking forward, looking back: drawing on the past to shape the future of marketing, 2015, pp. 625-634.

The Olympic Games is a mega-event on many dimensions, including participants, audience, expenditures, and national rivalries. As such, it creates branding opportunities for the Games themselves, host countries, athletes, and corporate sponsors. This study explores the impact of expectations and their confirmation on attitudes and evaluations of the Olympics as a sport mega-event and as a destination from the perspective of domestic (i.e., Canadian) and foreign (i.e., American) residents in the context of the XXI Winter Olympic Games.

The Olympic Games of Athens: 10 years later
This paper presents the Olympic Games of Athens in 2004 and the legacy they have left to the city of Athens and generally to Greece. It relies mainly on research made after the Olympic Games 2004, as well as on a Pan-Hellenic survey conducted through questionnaires to a country-wide sample of 600 respondents, men and women, from urban and non-urban regions. The survey focuses mainly on the sports venues, the impact of the Games on the infrastructures and the quality of life in Athens, the impact of the Games on urban interventions, the social legacy and the economic impact.

Mega-event cities: urban legacies of global sports events
Bringing together scholars, practitioners and policy makers, this book focuses upon the legacies sought by cities that host major sports events. It analyses how governments, the IOC and others define and measure "legacy". It also focuses upon the challenges and opportunities facing future host cities of mega-events, looking at their aspirations and the intended impact upon their domestic and international development.

Symboles olympiques / Olympic symbols

From Olympic symbols to historical and cultural representations: the Summer mascots
The author describes the history of all the Summer Olympic mascots.

Jeux Paralympiques / Paralympic Games

Medical care before and during the Winter Paralympic Games in Turin 2006, Vancouver 2010 and Sochi 2014
Medical care in disabled sports is crucial both as prophylaxis and as ongoing medical intervention. The aim of this paper was to present changes in the quality of medical care over the consecutive Paralympic Games. The study encompassed 31 paralympians: Turin (11), Vancouver (12), and Sochi (8) competing in cross-country skiing, alpine skiing, biathlon and snowboarding.

Standards of conditions during preparations for the Summer Paralympic Games between 2004 and 2012 assessed by Polish athletes
The quality of training conditions affects sporting success, injuries and health. The aim of the work was to present the conditions during the preparations of Polish athletes for the Summer Paralympic Games 2004-2012. The study encompassed 271 paralympians: Athens (91), Beijing (89) and London (91), competing in 13 disciplines.
Discrimination

Le sport en France à l’épreuve du racisme du XIXe siècle à nos jours : sports, xénophobie, racisme et antisémitisme
Claude Boli... [et al.]. Nouveau Monde, 2015, 384 p.
Cet ouvrage offre un panorama inédit des expressions du racisme, de la xénophobie et de l'antisémitisme dans le sport français du XIXe siècle à nos jours. Contre les clichés aveuglément prosports ou féroce anti-sports, historiens et sociologues démontrent la nature ambivalente de ce loisir et spectacle de masse. Parce que le corps est un jeu, les pulsions xénophobes et racistes s’y expriment avec une rare violence, en même temps que le sport peut constituer un espace de sociabilité transethnique, un creuset d'intégration des étrangers, un corpus de valeurs érigé contre les vents mauvais qui soufflent sur la société française.

Droit / Law

A context and practice global case file: an intersex athlete’s constitutional challenge, Hastings v. USATF, IAAF, and IOC
Hastings v. USATF, IAAF, and IOC is a case where sports, constitutional law, and human rights law converge when an elite athlete is excluded from the Olympics due to her gender. This case is a federal appeal by Nakia Hastings, a female intersex athlete who was excluded by USA Track Field ["USATF"] from the US team sent to the 2012 London Olympics. Although international in focus, the case file is designed to be accessible to US JD’s and LLM’s, and thus it is set in a US court and all legal authorities are available in English. The case file includes the appellate record and potential assignments, specifically, an appellate brief, oral arguments, appellate mediation, and a judicial opinion for the case. This book is part of the “Context and practice series”, edited by Michael Hunter Schwartz, Professor of Law and Dean of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock Bowen School of Law.

Evidence in anti-doping at the intersection of science and law
This book is a comprehensive, practice-oriented guide to the evidentiary regime under the 2015 World Anti-Doping Code (WADC) including the functioning of the athlete biological passport. It is the first to show how the interplay between science and law affects the collection and evaluation of evidence in anti-doping, and how paradigm shifts in anti-doping strategies may modify evidentiary assumptions implicit to the WADC regime.

Economie / Economics

The economics of professional road cycling
Over the past decade, a growing body of academic literature on the economics of road cycling has been amassed. This book is the first volume to bring together a majority of the academic research and knowledge on the economics and management of professional road cycling. Each chapter treats a particular economic aspect of the sport, from organizational structure to marketing, labor, game theory, and competitive balance.

Éthique / Ethics

Ethics and governance in sport: the future of sport imagined
Yves Vanden Auweele... [et al.]. Routledge, 2016, 229 p.
What is, or what should be, the function of sport in a globalized, commercialized world? Why does sport matter in the 21st century? In "Ethics and governance in sport: the future of sport imagined", an ensemble of leading international experts from across the fields of sport management and ethics calls for a new model of sport that goes beyond the traditional view that sport automatically encourages positive physical, psychological, social, moral and political values.

Gouvernance / Governance

Policy and governance in sport: issues, organizations, and practical application

"Policy and governance in sport" addresses governance structures of sport organizations as well as policy issues pertaining to those organizations. The chapters, written by leading scholars, address characteristics associated with the governance of sport, sport ethics, collegiate governance, competitive balance, the Olympic Movement, disability sport issues, commercialization of sport, gender equity, globalization, nationalism, and human rights in sport. These discussions lead to addressing a wide assortment of policy considerations and analyses of problematic areas that arise in sport. This identification and further analysis of sport policy initiatives allow readers to look inside the interworking of sport organizations while gaining an appreciation for the intricacies of those organizations.

Marketing

Global sport marketing: sponsorship, ambush marketing, and the Olympic Games
Norm O'Reilly... [et al.]. Fitness Information Technology, 2015, 338 p.

The vastly changing importance of the Olympic Games as a global marketing vehicle, combined with the growing knowledge and emerging practical realities around ambush marketing, inspired this team of distinguished scholars and practitioners to write "Global sport marketing: sponsorship, ambush marketing, and the Olympic Games". The authors experiences bring a unique and varied perspective to this textbook. Their experiences include positions with international and national sport organizations, the International Olympic Committee, National Olympic Committees, International Federations, marketing agencies, sponsors of sport, and much more.

Sports media: reporting, producing and planning
“Sports media: reporting, producing and planning” covers reporting, anchoring, and production, and offers thorough descriptions of the sports reporter and anchor's function in sports journalism. This text offers important historical background on the evolution of the sports industry, some grounding in the business of sports, and a discussion of social issues including the experience of women in sports journalism.

Designed but not issued: the Olympic philately of Helsinki 1940
Manfred Bergman documents the numerous designs for special issues postage stamps for the Helsinki 1940 Olympic Games which were cancelled due to the outbreak of World War II.

Sailing in an occupied country: protests by Estonian emigrants against the 1980 Tallinn Olympic Regatta
The sailing regatta for the Olympic Games of 1980 was organized at the Pirita Sailing Centre in Tallinn. It is generally assumed that emigrant Estonians opposed the event. By December 1979, attempts to boycott the Moscow Olympics had faded. However, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan again opened the question. Eventually a large number of Western countries stayed home and many others did not participate in the sailing regatta. The situation was discussed again in the Estonian emigrant press but the focus of the general discussion was on Afghanistan and the Baltic question remained in its shadow. Besides writing memorandums to state officials and the International Olympic Committee, Estonian emigrants organized public demonstrations and sports festivals to support their cause. Although general interest in the Baltic question increased due to the Olympic sailing contests, the interest diminished soon after the Games.

The politics and culture of modern sports
This study examines the role of modern sports in constructing national identities and the way leaders have exploited sports to achieve domestic and foreign policy goals. The book focuses on the development of national sporting cultures in Great Britain and the United States, the particular processes by which the rest of Europe and the world adopted or rejected their games, and the impact of sports on domestic politics and foreign affairs.
Sport politics: an introduction
A comprehensive and lively introduction to the politics of sport. Introducing the key areas of the subject, it examines how governments around the world have increasingly invested in, promoted and used sport as part of their political agenda.

Religion

Sport and religion in the twenty-first century
This book examines the relationship between sport and religion with regard to twenty-first century topics such as race, fandom, education, and culture. The contributors provide new insights into the people, movements, and events that define the complex relationship between sport and religion around the world. A wonderful addition to any academic course on religion, sports, ethics, or culture as a whole.

Winning the race? : religion, hope, and reshaping the sport enhancement debate
Should high-tech prosthetic limbs be permissible in elite sports competitions? Why are caffeine and altitude tents usually acceptable while some cold medications are not? What will happen as we engineer new enhancing options such as genetic modification technologies that increase muscle strength, or individualized nutritional genomic programs for elite athletes? The ethics debate about the use of enhancements in elite sport is becoming increasingly complex. Yet we are not asking what relevance sports’ religious dimension has to this debate. Through an examination of literature on the relationship between sport, religion and spirituality, hope emerges as a compelling feature of sport and a significant part of what makes sport meaningful.

Anti-doping policies and the Gay Games: Morgan’s treatment-enhancement distinction in action

The anti-doping policy of the Gay Games offers an interesting exemplification of the treatment-enhancement distinction. Some Gay Games athletes require steroids to deal with the effects of HIV or for sexual reassignment, and the practice community had to negotiate coordinating conventions with regard to steroid use that remained committed to the deeper conventions of Gay Games sport. This paper will investigate the way that this policy emanated from the type of participatory social practice community that would be necessary for any sport to challenge the anti-doping fundamentalism within contemporary sports.

The EU, the revision of the world anti-doping code and the presumption of innocence
Jacob Kornbeck. IN: The international sports law journal, 15 December 2015, Ahead of print, pp. 1-25.

On account of its strict liability principle as well as other rules, the World Anti-Doping Code effectively does not recognise the presumption of innocence. This has implications in a number of ways in which the current WADA-led anti-doping system works, which are discussed in this paper.

The war on drugs in sport: moral panics and organizational legitimacy

This innovative and compelling work critically examines the relationship between sport, moral regulation and governance from a moral panic theoretical perspective. It argues that doping scandals create a crisis for sport governing bodies and other elite groups, leading to a moral panic, where the issues at stake for them are perceptions of their organizational legitimacy. McDermott also highlights the role of the media as a site where claims to legitimacy are made and contested, contributing to the social construction of a moral panic. The book makes a key contribution to moral panic theory by adapting Goode and Ben-Yehuda’s moral panic model to capture the diversity of interests and complex relationships between elite groups. It will be important reading for all students, researchers and policy-makers interested in sport sociology, moral panic theory, policy work on about governance and regulation, and the relationship between sport and wider society.

Sustainability in high performance sport: current practices, future directions
Success in high performance sport is highly valued in today's world, with lucrative contracts, sponsorship deals, and opportunities for celebrity status balanced against substantial investments of time and energy, and high chances of failure. With pressure mounting on athletes and coaches to make the most of athletic investments, the temptation to make health-related or ethical compromises is growing. "Sustainability in high performance sport" examines the pressures faced by coaches and athletes, and considers how sustainable science can offer alternative pathways to sporting excellence.

The engineering approach to Winter sports

“The engineering approach to Winter sports” presents the state-of-the-art research in the field of Winter sports in a harmonized and comprehensive way for a diverse audience of engineers, equipment and facilities designers, and materials scientists. The book examines the physics and chemistry of snow and ice with particular focus on the interaction (friction) between sports equipment and snow/ice, how it is influenced by environmental factors, such as temperature and pressure, as well as by contaminants and how it can be modified through the use of ski waxes or the microtextures of blades or ski soles. The authors also cover, in turn, the different disciplines in Winter sports: skiing (both alpine and cross country), skating and jumping, bob sledding and skeleton, hockey and curling, with attention given to both equipment design and on the simulation of gesture and track optimization.

Boxing competitors being the exception: judo, 1500 m running, and marathon running competitors at the 2012 London Olympic Games held inadequate ages, heights and/or weights that contributed to the humiliating defeats of Democratic Republic of the Congo. André Mukala Naengu Tshibangu. IN: Advances in physical education, 30 November 2015, Ahead of print, pp. 286-298.

There exist many factors that may have influenced the performance of the only four Democratic Republic of the Congo competitors at the 2012 London Olympic Games. However, in the present article, the attention is focused only on available anthropometric factors.
