MESSAGE FROM JACQUES ROGGE, IOC PRESIDENT

Thank you.

... athlete, whether elite or amateur. It is important to be informed of the latest research and best-practice medical advice and to ensure the best possible care for your athletes. As a former team doctor, I know how important it is to have access to the most recent methods and knowledge to provide the most effective care.

Our wish is to share with all NOC team doctors, physiotherapists and other healthcare providers the most recent methods and knowledge to provide the most effective care.

Therefore, this summer, on the occasion of the Games of the XXX Olympiad in London, you will have the opportunity to attend one symposium on Periodic Health Evaluations (PHE) and Electrocardiography (ECG), and a second symposium on Overuse Injuries and Stress Fractures in the Lower Extremities. In addition, you will have the opportunity to attend 10 practical workshops on various topics that are part of this academic programme.

Dear Colleagues,

As you may know, it is a tradition for the IOC Medical and Scientific Department to organise, during the Olympic Games, several symposiums and workshops on sports medicine and sports physiotherapy. Therefore, this summer, on the occasion of the Games of the XXX Olympiad in London, you will have the opportunity to attend 10 practical workshops on various topics that are part of this academic programme.
