INTRODUCTION

Freestyle wrestling first featured on the Olympic programme at the Games of the III Olympiad in St Louis in 1904. It was not organised in 1912, but since the Games of the VII Olympiad in Antwerp in 1920, it has been staged for each edition of the Games. Women's wrestling appeared for the first time on the programme of the Games of the XXVIII Olympiad in Athens in 2004.

KEY STAGES

Entry	1894: At the Paris Congress in June, the desire was expressed for wrestling to be on the Olympic programme. No details were given as to whether this would be freestyle or Greco-Roman. 1911: At the 14th IOC Session held in May in Budapest, the Organising Committee for the Games in Stockholm in 2012 was requested to include freestyle wrestling on its programme. This request was not followed up owing to lack of time and finance. 1924: At the 23rd IOC Session held in Paris in June-July, the IOC drew up a list of obligatory and optional sports. Wrestling was kept on the programme in its two forms: Freestyle and Greco-Roman.
Women's inclusion	2001: At the IOC Executive Board meeting held in September in Lausanne, it was decided to include women's wrestling on the programme of the Games of the XXVIII Olympiad in Athens in 2004.
