INTRODUCTION

Alpine skiing made its debut at the Olympic Winter Games Garmisch-Partenkirchen 1936 with the combined contested by both men and women. Four new events appeared at the Olympic Winter Games St. Moritz 1948 (men's and women's downhill and slalom), two more were added at the Olympic Winter Games Oslo 1952 (men's and women's giant slalom) and another four were included at the Olympic Winter Games Calgary 1988 (men's and women's super-G was added and the men's and women's combined returned). The latest addition is the nations team event, which will be introduced at PyeongChang 2018. The current programme has a total of 11 events (5 for each sex, 1 mixed).
