Model Rules

to assist Sports Organisations in implementing the

Olympic Movement Code on the Prevention of the Manipulation of Competitions

These 2017 Model Rules aim to assist all National Olympic Committees (NOCs) International Federations (IFs) and their respective members at the Continental, Regional and National level in drafting Rules in line with the Olympic Movement Code on the Prevention of the Manipulation of Competitions. The Code was approved by the IOC Executive Board in December 2015.

For further information related to the Code, please also read the Explanatory Note.

For those federations who have already implemented the Association of Summer Olympic International Federations (ASOIF) Model Rules on Betting and Anti-Corruption that were released in 2012, we invite you to undertake the necessary updates that may be needed in your rules.

The Olympic Movement Code on the Prevention of the Manipulation of Competitions ensures that all definitions are in line with the Council of Europe Convention on the Manipulation of Sports Competitions, the only internationally applicable Convention on the issue of competition manipulation.

Two Options are available for international federations to ensure they are in compliance with the Code (see below):

- Option 1: Sports Organisations may choose to incorporate the Code by reference.
- Option 2: Sports Organisations may choose to implement regulations consistent with the Code or more stringent than the Code.

All sports organisations should consider what status the Code has within its own constitution and legal structure. The Constitutions or By-laws may provide that its Board may pass “regulations in furtherance of these By-laws” or wording to that effect in which case, these Rules must be properly adopted as a regulation under the organisation’s Constitution or By-laws.

The IOC Ethics and Compliance Office is at the disposal of all sports organisations to assist in ensuring that their regulations are in conformity with the Code.

MODEL RULES

Sports Organisations may choose to incorporate the Code by reference.

- an appropriate appeal framework is provided (as required in art. 3.6) through reference directly in the Code or to another document of the Sports Organisation which provides for such an appeals framework.
