Article I

Title and Headquarters

The organisation, with its headquarters in ............. (town) will hereafter be referred to as the ............. (country) Olympic Committee.

Article II

1. The general object of the Olympic Committee is the fostering and the development of the Olympic Movement and its high ideals throughout the country, based principally on the provisions laid down in this constitution.

a) Fundamental Principles

1. The Olympic Games are held every four years. They assemble amateurs of all nations in fair and equal competition. No discrimination is allowed against any country or person on grounds of race, religion or political affiliation.

2. The Olympic Games celebrate an Olympiad or period of four successive years.

3. The aims of the Olympic Movement are to promote the development of those fine physical and moral qualities that come from contests on the friendly fields of amateur sport and to bring together the youth of the world in a great quadriennial sport festival, thereby creating international respect and goodwill, and helping to construct a better and more peaceful world.
4. A separate cycle of Olympic Winter Games is held, comprising competitions in Winter Sports. The Olympic Winter Games are held in the same calendar year as the Olympic Games. The term Olympiad is not used in connection with the Winter Games.

5. Only persons who are amateurs within the definition laid down by the IOC may compete in the Olympic Games.

6. Citizens of this country are qualified to participate in the Olympic Games only under their national colours.

7. All profits derived from the holding of the Olympic Games are paid to the International Olympic Committee and are necessarily applied to the promotion of the Olympic Movement or to the development of amateur sport.

8. This Olympic Committee must be completely independent and autonomous and in a position to resist all political, religious or commercial pressure.

b) Objectives of the Olympic Movement

The Olympic Games were not revived by the Baron de Coubertin merely to give contestants a chance to win medals and to break records, not to entertain the public, nor to provide for the participants a stepping-stone to a career in professional sport, nor certainly to demonstrate the superiority of one political system over another.

His idea was they would:

1. bring to the attention of the world the fact that a national program of physical training and competitive sport will not only develop stronger and healthier boys and girls but also and perhaps more important will make better and happier citizens through the character building that follows participation in properly administrated amateur sport.
2. demonstrate the principles of fair play and good sportsmanship, which could be adopted with great advantage in many other spheres of activity.

3. stimulate interest in the fine arts through exhibitions and demonstrations, and thus contribute to a broader and more well rounded life.

4. teach that sport is play for fun and enjoyment and not to make money, and that with devotion to the task at hand, the reward will take care of itself - the philosophy of the amateur is contrasted to that of materialism.

5. create international amity and good will, thus leading a happier and more peaceful world.

c) Olympic Day

The International Olympic Committee has suggested that all National Olympic Committees should celebrate the revival of the Olympic Games each year during the month of June in observing an "Olympic Day" or "Olympic Week".

In this connection, special competitions in the various sports on the Olympic Program should be held and speeches on the Olympic Movement and its philosophy should be made in schools and clubs.

Also a ceremony on the day of the opening of the Olympic Games, at which an Olympic flag is raised in a prominent location and a flame is lit to burn during the period of the Games to serve as a reminder of the friendly contests in which their teams are engaged in the greatest Festival of Sport.

d) The Role of the Government

For the benefit and welfare of citizens, this committee will assist the government to initiate and carry out a program of physical culture, recreation and health for the youth of its country. Completely independent control of competitive amateur sport in both its national and international phases must be left however to the National Federations and this committee.
Teaching Olympic Principles in the public schools is recommended. This committee will provide the necessary documentation.

e) Olympic Spirit

The Olympic Committee will encourage the development of Olympic spirit among the youth of this country and will promote a program of education for the public and the press on the philosophy of amateurism. The Olympic Committee will keep in mind not to concentrate too much on performance and new records but more the social, educational, aesthetic, ethical and spiritual values of amateur sports.

f) Cities which desire to stage the Olympic Games

The honour of holding the Olympic Games is entrusted to a city and not to a country. But the choice of a city for the celebration of an Olympiad lies solely with the International Olympic Committee.

Application to hold the Games is made by the Mayor or other chief authority of the city concerned. This Olympic Committee will eventually choose a city if there is more than one candidate in the country to stage the Games, and has to guarantee that the games will be organized to the satisfaction and the requirements of the International Olympic Committee.

The selection, except in exceptional circumstances, has to be made six years in advance.

The invitation to stage the Olympic Games must come from the highest city authority, be endorsed by this Olympic Committee and be submitted in writing to the International Olympic Committee, Château de Vidy, Lausanne, Switzerland. The candidature must be supported by the government of this country in order to ensure its co-operation in staging the games successfully. In case a definite choice has been made, and the city selected, the organization of the Games is entrusted by the International Olympic Committee to the Olympic Committee of this country which may delegate the duties with which it has been entrusted, to a special Organizing Committee which shall thenceforth correspond directly with the International Olympic Committee. The powers of this Organizing Committee then expire at the end of the Games.
The duties of the Organizing Committee are described in detail in a booklet "Suggestions to the Organizing Committee of Olympic Games", which can be obtained at the Secretariat of the International Olympic Committee in Lausanne.
